The Problem is Significant: A Few Highlights

- The cost of college attendance has increased 78% over the last decade;
- Only 24% of students graduate from college in 4 years - the average is now 5.8 years;
- About one third of families will pay full price for college and it can be a staggering sum that may place a real burden on our children;
- 54% of bachelor degree holders under the age of 25 are unemployed or underemployed.

There is an Effective Way to Address the Problem

We want to introduce you to Kevin Krebs, Founder of Partners For Achievement (PFA). We invite you to hear his presentation 3 Steps to College Planning & Career Success. Kevin's program provides insights and actions that you can use immediately to plan for a successful college experience and address the real threats of escalating college cost, debt and career disappointment.

PFA's presentation will help you understand the current college landscape, as well as plan for a strong financial future. Typically paying for college will be the largest financial investment a family will make next to their home, so we encourage you to join us for an evening of learning and lively discussion on this important topic.
